Steps To Heaven : Simulation Games : Feudalism

How many of us have imagined being a knight or lady in medieval times? This period holds many romantic images for us and has given us a legacy of art, holidays, and doctrines. Like Mark Twain we would like to go back into history and live a day to see the pomp and majesty. In this simulation that possibility becomes a reality for the students. They have an opportunity to experience the glory as well as the dangers and drudgery of the feudal system. We hope that you enjoy these adventurous times.

Teachers should remember that the simulation is a divergent teaching method. Each class reacts differently to the lessons. This manual provides modifications that promote critical thinking, but it can not list them all. Creative students will suggest many more alternatives. Teachers must use their judgment and flow with the class.

A resource for teachers...

The Authors combine their forty years of teaching experience have developed a variety of instructional strategies that promote the development of creative and critical thinking skills. Foremost among these is the Independent Study Process in self Starter Kit for Independent study.
