Encyclopedia of Women in the Middle Ages Jennifer Lawler

What is supposed to be an encyclopedic reference book is in fact a more general guide to women living between AD 500 and 1500. Neither detailed nor comprehensive, it is aimed at a general readership who is seeking brief details on the best known women of the time. The short biographies are interspersed with general thematic discussions including family, marriage, religion, employment, slavery, clothing etc. Includes many genealogical charts.
