African Women A Historical Panorama Patricia W. Romero

A survey of the roles women have played in Africa south of the Sahara, from the Queen of Sheba in Ethiopia to the present-day presidents of Liberia and Malawi. Romero discusses education and religion; the occult and power; diseases and treatment; women and war; and women s increasing presence on the political stage, including their roles as environmental activists. Drawing on the latest research, the book comprises documents, travellers accounts, and case studies in its coverage of pre-colonial, colonial, and post-colonial Africa.
